

THE LAST DYNASTY

Genre: Real-Time Musical Dynasty Thriller

Runtime: ~120 minutes

Structure: 3 Acts / 8 Sequences / 1 Continuous Night (11:30 PM–6:00 AM)

Primary Theme: Legacy isn't what you inherit... it's what you choose to release, and what you choose to create.

SYNOPSIS

Atlanta. 11:30 PM.

The “Last Party” at Crown Hall kicks off in opulent chaos. King Carter, the aging and manipulative titan of Royalty Records, is throwing one final blowout to crown his successor—and finalize a hidden will. But this isn't just a celebration. It's a crucible.

Enter Jasmine Carter (45): King's estranged daughter, a former R&B star turned ghost of the spotlight, returns desperate. She's suffering from a degenerative neurological disease and needs $10 million for life-saving gene therapy... money her father once promised. But the moment she arrives, she's ambushed by cameras, cold family embraces, and the weight of unfinished business.

Inside, secrets swirl:

- Valeria, King's much-younger wife, is protecting a prenup that zeroes out at dawn.
- Dante, King's adopted son, is under cartel pressure to liquidate Royalty by sunrise.
- Marcus, King's lifelong fixer, is holding a final, treacherous secret.
- Shereé Noble, a detective turned “guest,” is quietly investigating a decades-old disappearance tied to Royalty's rise.

As midnight strikes, King is found dead... bludgeoned in his study. The mansion locks down. A fire erupts in the west wing. The crown shaped lapel pin (the symbolic key to his fortune) is missing. And the clock starts ticking.

Act I: The Return

Jasmine, trapped with guests and ghosts, pivots from survival to investigation. With Shereé's reluctant help, she searches for the truth, the vault, and the pin that could save her life.

Act II: Secrets & Suspects

Jasmine uncovers that:

- Dante is stealing funds through a crypto siphon tied to the cartel.
- Marcus sold off King's master recordings and tries to cut Jasmine in on the lie.
- Valeria confesses to striking King, panicked, trying to protect her prenup.

As tensions rise, Shereé uncovers that three separate people wore the LED murder mask throughout the night. It wasn't a lone killer, it was a collective crime. Everyone's complicit. But who delivered the fatal blow?

A holographic message from King plays: "The ledger lies. My legacy is buried, not inherited." This shifts Jasmine's understanding of what's really at stake.

Act III: The Reckoning

In a secret will reading, the truth explodes:

- Valeria admits she hit King during a panic but didn't kill him.
- Dante set the fire to destroy cartel evidence.
- Marcus reveals he poisoned King slowly. He was dying anyway but Marcus made sure.

A Mexican standoff ensues. Jasmine, shaken but composed, streams everything live to every artist on the Royalty app, exposing decades of corruption. The police breach Crown Hall at dawn. The empire collapses.

Final Choice & Epilogue

King's lawyers offer Jasmine a Faustian bargain: sign a new contract and get her cure or walk away. She refuses.

Collapsing from a tremor, she's saved not by the system but by Lila, a Gen Z pop star and King's secret daughter, who uploads viral concert footage as an NFT and uses the proceeds to fund Jasmine's surgery.

In the final scene, Jasmine melts King's gold ledger into a minimalist crown, a symbol of freedom over inheritance. She boards a jet with Lila, now her true sister in legacy. Shereé, meanwhile, opens a long lost flash drive: "Crown Hall 1999."

Mid/Post-Credit Tags

- Mid-credit: Zayd, King's secret son, performs his diss track "Crownless." It goes triple platinum.
 - Post-credit: In prison, Dante hears a new voice on the radio: "Welcome to Legacy Records." The cycle continues with new power in new hands.
-

Tone & Style:

Cinematic DNA: Knives Out × Empire × The Great Gatsby × Inside Man × Euphoria

Visual Cues: Color-coded sequences (Gold = Legacy, Crimson = Sin, Blue = Truth), holograms, livestreams, surveillance.

Music:

Atlanta artists score the emotional and narrative beats (H.E.R., Zaytoven, JID, Baby Tate). Music is weapon, memory, liberation.