

REFLECTIONS

Genre: Psychological Thriller

Format: Feature Film (90 minutes)

Setting: Atlanta, GA, where glass, architecture, and reflections become weapons.

LOGLINE

A traumatized architectural photographer fleeing an abusive relationship starts over in Atlanta, only to be hunted by a meticulous stalker whose obsession traps her inside a maze of reflections. When her best friend becomes the next target, the women turn the city's glass and light against him in a high-stakes showdown inside the High Museum.

THE HOOK

A female-forward psychological thriller where architecture, photography, and reflections aren't just visuals, they are story weapons. Every window hides a watcher. Every photo reveals a clue. Every reflection holds the truth the killer can't control.

THE STORY

After escaping her abusive ex in Savannah, Maggie Sullivan, a gifted but shaken architectural photographer, moves to Atlanta to rebuild her life with the help of her best friend Taylor, a bold designer and activist with a painful history of not helping a friend in danger.

But Maggie's new start is shattered when David Morrison, a clean-cut, forgettable man with a past tied to several missing women, fixates on her. What begins as subtle intrusions, corrupted photos, small objects moved, a smiley face left on dusty glass, escalates into a psychological siege. Maggie's coping mechanism becomes her survival tool: she captures signs of him through distorted reflections, though no one else ever sees him directly.

When Taylor discovers she's being stalked too, photographed inside her own loft, she builds a "war room" to map the pattern. A reckless attempt to confront Morrison nearly gets her killed, waking Maggie in the hospital and pulling her back into the fight.

Together, the women team up with Mark, a private investigator, to create a trap inside the High Museum of Art, using synchronized strobes and reflective walls to disorient Morrison and expose him in a cascade of fractured images. Maggie finally captures the shot that proves he's real and ends his spree.

CHARACTERS

Maggie Sullivan

A survivor reclaiming her voice through the lens. Her journey transforms her from fearful and self-doubting to a woman who weaponizes her art and intuition.

Taylor Simpson

Confident, funny, flawed. Her activism fuels her need to protect Maggie and her guilt over a past failure makes her almost dangerously bold.

David Morrison

Methodical, charming façade masking a predator who watches women through glass. His victims resemble Maggie, including the one who got away.

Derek

Maggie's ex. His emotional control haunts her early decisions and echoes Morrison's patterns, creating a thematic mirror of abuse.

THEMES

- Survival & Reclamation: Healing from abuse isn't linear; it demands agency.
 - Visibility vs. Invisibility: What we see vs. what we choose to ignore.
 - Female friendship as lifeline: Two women protecting each other when systems fail.
 - Architecture as identity: Buildings, like people, carry scars, histories, and facades.
-

MARKET COMPS

The Invisible Man × The Girl on the Train × You

— Prestige psychological suspense, female-driven, with elevated visual storytelling.

WHY IT SELLS

- Strong female leads and a nuanced friendship at the core.
 - A fresh visual hook: stalking told through reflections and photography.
 - A finale that is truly cinematic, a glass-and-light trap no one has seen before.
 - Lean, suspenseful, and aimed at adult thriller audiences on Netflix, Amazon, Max, and Hulu.
-