

LOGLINE

After a viral breakup humiliates her online, a perfectionist beauty influencer retreats to a wellness retreat outside Atlanta to regroup—only to fall for a grounded handyman who doesn't care about social media or likes. Now, she must choose between her curated life... and something real.

TONE

Warm, flirty, heartfelt with comedic edge. Think: romantic drama meets social satire, with an Atlanta aesthetic.

THEME

- The search for authenticity in a curated world
 - Healing from digital trauma
 - Choosing real connection over public validation
 - Rebuilding identity beyond likes and follows

PITCH

In today's world, where public personas and private pain collide online, Love After Likes is a timely, female-driven romantic dramedy that asks: who are you when the cameras stop rolling? With the energy of a modern fairytale and the emotional weight of a redemption arc, this project is tailor-made for networks seeking stories about resilience, reinvention, and love that begins after the fall.

Perfect for Lifetime and BET+ audiences craving feel-good storytelling with cultural specificity, emotional intelligence, and millennial relatability.

DETAILED SYNOPSIS

Brielle Mason, a glamorous Atlanta beauty influencer, has it all—until her boyfriend publicly dumps her on a livestream that goes viral. Her empire crumbles overnight.

Reeling, Brielle checks into SoulSource, a phone-free wellness retreat in rural Georgia. There, she meets Malik Everett, a handsome handyman with a poetic soul and no social media footprint. Initially clashing, the two form a surprising connection that forces Brielle to reckon with her offline self.

As her past comes knocking with a high-profile brand redemption deal, Brielle must decide: does she resurrect the digital identity that nearly broke her, or take a chance on real life, real love—and herself?

OUTLINE

Act I – The Fall

Brielle's breakup humiliates her online. She's canceled, mocked, and emotionally spirals. She disappears to SoulSource.

Act II – The Shift

At the retreat, Brielle faces discomfort, therapy, and the blunt honesty of Malik. Their dynamic slowly evolves from friction to flirtation to something deeper.

Act III – The Choice

Brielle's agent brings her a massive brand comeback opportunity. Torn between her past and present, she nearly sabotages everything with Malik. But a final act of truth sets her on a new path—authentic, intentional, and real.

CHARACTER BREAKDOWN

Brielle Mason (32, Black)

Beauty & lifestyle influencer. Confident on camera, but deeply insecure off it. Her journey is about unlearning performance and embracing vulnerability.

Malik Everett (35, Black)

Soulful handyman and former journalist. Introspective, emotionally available, and not impressed by fame. He challenges Brielle to rediscover her truth.

Taylor (30s, Black)

Brielle's cousin. An outspoken ATL hairstylist. The comedic voice of reason with big heart and loyalty.

Mama Jan (50s–60s, Black)

Owner of the wellness retreat. A former midwife with wisdom for days. She gently nudges Brielle toward growth.

Sabine (40s, Afro-Latina)

A former influencer turned advocate. Shows Brielle that reinvention is possible without performance.
