> A disgraced nurse takes a live-in job caring for a silenced former senator, then discovers the family that hired her chose her on purpose: her one bad mistake makes her the perfect person to blame.

THE STORY

Dana Reyes, an LPN and single mother, takes a private-duty job at the Whitfield estate caring for Eleanor, a former senator and whistleblower silenced by a stroke. Eleanor can't speak, but she can point. Dana builds her a speech ladder one rung at a time: an alphabet card, then HELP, CAREFUL, NO, Boy first, and finally short sentences. Meanwhile the family's foundation is being drained, a doctor's emergency note has been altered, and every route Dana takes toward help is poisoned before it arrives.

WHO / WHAT / WHY / LOSE

- Who. Dana, 34, ER-trained LPN. Keeps two notebook columns, OBSERVED and ASSESSED.
- What threatens her. Priscilla, the polished foundation chair and Eleanor's daughter, who hired Dana because she is compromised.
- Why no one can solve it. A county caseworker is steered away, the agency fires Dana, the housekeeper is trapped by her own son's secret.
- What she loses. Her license, her freedom, and her son Luca, with an eviction clock running from page one.

THE ENGINE

Every rung of Eleanor's speech ladder is an escalation the audience feels, and every villain move is visible: cameras in every room but one, a forged right-handed signature, a count sheet torn out of a clipboard, a blackout at the climax, and one thumb holding down an alarm button.

TRAILER MOMENTS

- A nurse initials a chart box she never checked. One pen stroke, one life.
- A glass of water, a letter on a card, and the word HELP.
- A forged signature, smooth and right-handed, on a woman who only signs left.
- A count sheet in Dana's own handwriting, and a daughter tearing it off along the perforation.
- The lights go out. Eleanor's thumb holds the alarm down while the house tries to silence it.
- A cardboard dog house, one square missing, and the last piece fits the back door.

PRODUCTION SNAPSHOT

- Principal cast: 5. Supports: about 7. One child role (age 8).
- Primary location: one estate, interior and exterior, plus a gate and garden wall.
- Secondary: nursing facility, a rental house, a hospital stand-in, a school pickup line.
- Stunts and effects: none. One power-out sequence, one door shove.
- Nights: heavy in Acts Two and Three.

COMPANION

Under the Plate, an 8-episode vertical series told by the prior caregiver, built to hand off directly into the first scene of the movie.
