

MIRROR IMAGE

Genre: Psychological Thriller / Tech-Noir

Format: 90-Minute Movie of the Week

Setting: Atlanta, Georgia

LOGLINE

When Atlanta's top fashion influencer is digitally framed by her own sister using deepfakes, forged evidence, and AI-driven manipulation, she must unravel a web of betrayal before her identity and sanity are erased forever.

THE PROJECT

Mirror Image is a sleek, contemporary psychological thriller set at the intersection of influencer culture, digital identity, and sisterhood betrayal. The film blends emotional stakes with high-tech tension, using deepfake technology, social media warfare, and real-time digital clues to drive a twisty, character-centered story.

The film follows Vanessa Chen, a self-made influencer whose picture-perfect life collapses in hours after a viral video, one she never recorded, destroys her reputation and freezes her assets. As she tries to clear her name, she uncovers a shocking truth: the person orchestrating her downfall is not an enemy online... but her sister Maya, who has spent years studying her, imitating her, and preparing the ultimate identity heist.

The story builds to a tense digital showdown where Vanessa must outsmart Maya in a live-streamed battle of truth versus illusion. In the end, Vanessa rises from curated perfection to raw authenticity, reclaiming her voice, her story, and her power.

THEME

- Sisterhood fractured by jealousy and childhood wounds
 - The danger of constructing your worth around public perception
 - Deepfakes, AI, and the terrifying fragility of digital identity
 - What authenticity means in a world built on filters and performance
-

TONE

Slick. Stylish. Suspenseful.

A blend of Gone Girl psychological deceit and Black Mirror tech paranoia, grounded in

Atlanta's vibrant influencer world.

CASTING TARGETS

Vanessa Chen: Jamie Chung, Jessica Henwick

Maya Chen: Lana Condor, Kelsey Asbille

Marcus Rivera: Anthony Ramos, Algee Smith

Jayden (Tech Expert): Justice Smith

(Full casting mock-up available.)

MARKETING HOOKS

- A sister's betrayal hits harder than any villain.
 - You don't really know who I am.
 - When identity goes digital, truth becomes optional.
 - Relevant to current conversations about deepfakes, online reputation, and cancel culture
 - Influencer world = built-in social media marketing
-

WHY IT SELLS

- Female-driven thriller with multicultural leads
- High-concept but emotionally grounded
- Atlanta setting taps into a hot production hub with audience recognition
- Plays directly to Lifetime, BET, OWN, and streaming thriller audiences

- Marketable visuals (glitch aesthetics, split-screens, ring lights, social media feeds)
 - Perfect for promos, TikTok campaigns, and digital-first marketing
-

PRODUCTION VALUE

Glossy, modern, visually dynamic.

Uses screen-life elements, digital overlays, and immersive sound design to elevate tension while remaining cost-efficient.

TARGET AUDIENCE

Women 18–45

Fans of social media thrillers, domestic suspense, true-crime-inspired stories, and high-drama sisterhood narratives.