

CHEER HEIST

STUDIO TREATMENT

OVERVIEW

Cheer Heist is a high energy action heist film powered by athletic spectacle, neon soaked style and an underdog story with bite. It blends the precision of Ocean's 8, the competitive fire of Bring It On and the rhythmic adrenaline of Baby Driver.

The film follows a discarded cheer team that fakes its own collapse and recruits a crew of outcast athletes to infiltrate the most exclusive cheer intensive in Las Vegas. Their mission is simple. Steal back the routine that was taken from them and expose the system that tried to erase them. The weapon is choreography. The score is settled live on a global stream.

This is a heist story through a Gen Z lens: sharp, cinematic and full of institutional rage turned into art.

LOGLINE

When their championship routine is stolen and their futures destroyed, the Eastside Devils fake their own implosion and secretly build a heist squad of seven rejected athletes to infiltrate a Vegas mega intensive, crack a biometric choreography vault and reclaim what is theirs in a live streamed performance that detonates the cheer world.

tone and style

Cheer Heist is bold, fast and visually loud. The lighting is neon. The music is beat driven. The routines are filmed like action set pieces that fuse dance, athletics and tactical movement.

The tone is fun but not frivolous. It carries the heartbeat of rebellion. The world is glossy on the surface and rotten underneath. The film never mocks cheerleading. It elevates it to superhero level physicality and creative intelligence.

Movement is the language of the story. Each stunt has narrative meaning.

THE WORLD

Vista Verde All Stars:

A perfectly polished, corporate backed program. Their image is flawless. Their ethics are not. They represent the toxic side of elite youth sports. They steal routines, coerce athletes and bury anyone who threatens their brand.

Eastside Devils:

A local crew with heart, grit and raw creativity. They have been overlooked and underestimated for years. When Vista Verde steals their routine and their future, they decide to burn the whole system down.

The Nexus Intensive:

A high stakes, invite only Las Vegas mega camp. Facial recognition gates. Biometric locks. A choreography vault kept on an air gapped server. Two hundred elite athletes. Sponsors. Cameras. Broadcast access to millions. It is Fort Knox for cheer.

This is where the heist unfolds.

CHARACTERS

Maya Reyes. The Architect.

A prodigy strategist with a mysterious injury that ended her career. Calm. Calculated. Weapon smart. She designs the heist like a routine. Count by count. Move by move.

Chloe Huntington. The Face.

Vista Verde's former captain. Expelled after refusing to play along with corrupt donors. Skilled, charismatic and growing out of her privilege. Her uneasy alliance with Maya becomes the emotional core of the film.

Tank Morrison. The Heavy.

A powerhouse with secret ballet training. Quiet intensity. A protector with surprising grace. He uses strength as strategy.

Kira Chen. The Navigator.

Parkour prodigy and ex gymnast. She maps every entrance, exit and twelve second timing window. Movement is her blueprint.

Jinx Williams. The Phantom.

Sixteen year old hacker with a cult following. Sarcastic, brilliant and unfazed by authority. She ghosts every camera and melts every server.

Cassandra “Cash” Shaw. The Con Artist.

Debate champion turned underground poker legend. Reads people like text on a screen. Builds fake identities and sells every lie with confidence.

Briar “Riot” Mackenzie. The Anarchist.

Roller derby star with chaotic energy. Unpredictable. Fearless. Turns disasters into miracles through sheer audacity.

Together, they make a crew that no adult system saw coming.

SYNOPSIS

ACT I. THE STUNT

The Eastside Devils’ championship routine is stolen by Vista Verde. Their scholarship offers evaporate. Their reputation collapses. The girls post a tearful, beautifully staged “we quit” video that goes viral.

The cheer world mourns. Sponsors walk away. Vista Verde wins.

The tears were fake. The collapses were planned. The Devils are not done. Maya begins building a heist crew out of seven rejected athletes with extreme skills. Training montages unfold like action sequences. The plan takes shape. The target is the Nexus Intensive. The goal is justice.

ACT II. THE PYRAMID

The Devils infiltrate the Nexus Intensive under forged credentials. The world is high tech and heavily guarded. Chloe uses her past status to open doors. Cash bluffs VIP staff. Jinx hijacks the camera feeds. Tank and Briar create controlled chaos to distract guards. Kira scouts every structural line of the building.

Their showcase routine is a Trojan horse. Every formation is timed to move someone closer to the choreography vault. The tension escalates as Vista Verde arrives, smug and unaware they are being hunted.

The Devils retrieve the stolen routine files, but Maya reveals the real mission. They are not just stealing it back. They are replacing it live.

ACT III. THE DISMOUNT

The final showcase streams to ten million viewers. Vista Verde begins performing the stolen routine. Suddenly the music glitches. The screen freezes. The routine collapses in front of millions.

New music hits. The lights shift. The Devils take the stage.

Their performance is a weapon. The original routine. Sharper. Faster. Unapologetically theirs. It is athletic fury turned into art.

The livestream erupts. Fans revolt. Sponsors flee Vista Verde. The system cracks.

The Devils drop their poms and walk offstage as legends who hacked the entire cheer ecosystem.

WHY THIS FILM

Cheer Heist sits at the intersection of heist films, competitive sports dramas and high energy youth rebellion stories. It has built in virality through choreography and character arcs that reflect modern pressure on young athletes and Gen Z's deep frustration with broken institutions.

It features a diverse female ensemble with global marketability.

It has cross platform franchise potential.

It is visually explosive and emotionally resonant.

It fills a wide open lane in the teen action market.
