

THIS IS ME NOW

Genre: Coming-of-Age Drama / Social Thriller

Format: Feature Film (or 90-min MOW)

Tone: Eighth Grade × Do Revenge × Dead Poets Society

Vibe: Raw, modern, glitch-aesthetic, spoken-word-powered

LOGLINE

When a shy, hyper-focused teen's private video is leaked by someone she trusted, she becomes the target of a viral shame storm. With her future slipping away and the adults around her failing her, she must reclaim her story on her own terms, ending with a spoken-word performance that silences the room and rewrites her narrative.

THE HOOK

This isn't a "girl gets canceled" story.

It's a coming-of-voice story.

A Gen Z heroine forced into the spotlight fights back using intellect, truth, and art, not violence.

Her silence was their power... until she broke it.

WHY IT SELLS

- Built for Gen Z + Gen Alpha, the most online generation in history
 - Explores digital trauma, identity, consent, and reputation
 - Sharp, emotional arc with a powerful final setpiece that is instantly promo-ready
 - Delivers the authenticity of Eighth Grade with the attitude of Do Revenge
 - Allows for strong young talent to give a breakout performance
 - Visually distinctive, high-impact, low-budget locations (school hallways, auditorium, bedrooms, social media overlays)

MAIN CHARACTER: BRYNN CARTER

17, Quiet, brilliant, underestimated. A tech whiz who thought staying invisible kept her safe. But when a private video goes public, she's forced to evolve from silent achiever to truth-telling rebel, finding her voice through poetry and public defiance.

THEMES

- Reclaiming narrative in a world that rewrites you
 - Voice vs. silence in digital spaces
 - Shame culture and the high cost of “going viral”
 - Friendship as resistance
 - Identity, perception, and self-authorship

COMPARABLES

- Do Revenge — stylized high school power dynamics
 - Eighth Grade — raw emotional authenticity
 - A Girl Like Her — digital cruelty narrative
 - Dead Poets Society — climactic performance of truth

MARKETING HOOKS

- “She was their joke. Until she took the mic.”
- “One click can destroy you. One truth can save you.”

- “Silence was her survival. Speaking is her revolution.”

THE TAKEAWAY

This Is Me Now is a bold, emotional, Gen Z-powered drama about the moment a girl stops letting the world define her and starts writing her own story. A visually striking, culturally relevant film with a final scene built to trend, resonate, and linger.
