THE WINGWOMAN

She wrote the rules. He wrote them first.

ROMANTIC COMEDY / FEATURE

Written by Kelly R. Tenney
NCCA Entertainment

A love expert with one impossible proof.

A dating guru who sells love as a system has thirty days to prove it works in public or lose her company.

Her test subject is her best friend’s divorced brother. Her rulebook began in his college notebook.

The story engine

THE DEAL

$14 million for Bekah’s company, if her method creates a public love story in thirty days.

THE SUBJECT

Eli Cohen, a history teacher and single dad who has stayed out of dating for two years.

THE SECRET

Bekah loved Eli in college and built her system from ideas he wrote down in a UCLA library.

Bekah Hargan

She can sell certainty to a theater full of strangers. She cannot risk one honest sentence with Eli.

START

Turns fear into a profitable dating formula.

CHOICE

At the Biltmore, she can name a couple and keep the deal, or expose what she hid.

Eli is a person, not a case study.

A rumpled teacher, a father to nine-year-old Sophie, and the unwitting author of Bekah’s rules.

His boundary changes the movie:

He drops her live coaching earpiece into a water glass mid-date. Her instructions keep talking while he decides for himself.

The people who raise the stakes

NAOMI COHEN

Eli’s sister and Bekah’s best friend. She gives Bekah the chance, then sees the cost.

DEREK LONG

Podcast co-host and Bekah’s conscience. He tells her the truth without a script.

CHLOE VANCE

A rival coach with boundaries. She offers Eli a real alternative.

HERMAN KAPLAN

An investor who treats private intimacy as public inventory.

Three moments for the trailer

01

THE EARPIECE

Eli sinks Bekah’s voice in a water glass.

02

$14 MILLION ON FIRE

Bekah refuses to name the couple at the Biltmore and confesses.

03

ONE SHOE IN THE RAIN

She runs through a rare LA storm and finds Eli at her door.

Tone and audience

Fast, funny adult romance with an earned apology and a warm family center.

Hitch	The love expert who cannot follow her own advice.
Set It Up	Engineered matchmaking under a work deadline.
Always Be My Maybe	Long LA history and feelings left unsaid.
Nobody Wants This	Warm Jewish family texture and grown-up romance.

A contained Los Angeles feature

95–100 minutes / R-rated romantic comedy

Silver Lake and Atwater give the romance lived-in texture. The Wiltern opening and Biltmore gala provide scale. The rare rainstorm pays off the ending.

Anchor locations: two apartments, an office, a podcast studio, one restaurant.
