LOGLINE

When a dating app matches two exes who vowed never to speak again, they're dared into three dates, only to realize their love story may not be finished after all.

CONCEPT

Ava Campbell is a polished tech entrepreneur whose dating app just launched with major buzz. Daniel Brooks is a laid-back record store owner, still recovering from a very public college breakup with Ava. When the app's new "soul match" algorithm pairs them at 95%, Ava agrees to go on three "test dates" for PR. What starts as a stunt turns into a slow-burning rediscovery, set against the rhythm of Atlanta's cafes, night markets, dive bars, and hidden corners of memory.

Through banter, setbacks, and vulnerable moments, Ava and Daniel must decide if they've outgrown each other... or finally grown into the people they were meant to be.
